It is equally certain that the failure to secure consfertable quarters would provoke a storm of indignati n. threaten partial failure of the exhibition and subject the managers to very unwelcome abuse. In view of these facts Mr. Kimball proposes to ask all the people of Atlanta, rich and poor, without regard to their own comfort, to open their houses to the visitors at a fixed schedule of prices. In accordance with this plan all arrangements for board and all payments therefor all arrangements for board and all payments therefore would be conducted by the managers through a special department which would be responsible to both house-holders and visitors. M. Pasteur is conducting researches into the guidect of rabies which promise to throw much needed light upon this obscure and dreadful disease. He has already demonstrated that the brain substance as well as the saliva contains the virus and will produce the discase as effectively if used to inoculate healthy animals.

Matter from the medulla oblongula and the frontal portion have been thus used with success. The uncertain development of the disease after inoculation, and the variable and often very long period of incubation, have been among the chief difficulties in the investigation of rables. M. Pasteur is now able to communicate the disease surely, and to shorten considerably the time of incubation. His having recourse to trepanation and using as inoculating matter the cerebral substance of a mad dog as pure as possible. In that case, it is said, the first symptoms of rables appear infallibly in a week or two, and death ensues in less than three weeks. In these researches M. Pasteur has the cooperation of MM. Chamberland, Roux and Thuiliber.

The first payment of $200,000 upon the 4,000,000 acres of land purchased in Florida by the Philadelphia company was made on Tuesday by Mr. Hamilton Disston. The editor of The Floridian, pubphia, spoke favorably of this immense purchase, which comprises about one-eighth of the State of Florida. He said that the land was excellent and offered strong inducements to immigrants. All the tropical fruits would grow there, and the pineapple came to perfection without attention. Eananas and cassavas grew in profusion, and the soil was finely adapted to the growth of vegetables and melons. Immigrants, he said, were coming in largely from the Southwest, and to some extent from the New-England States, but the great trouble with them was that they came with visions of orange groves and not caring to till the soil. Florida was getting her share of immigration, but not as much as Texas. The interior of the State was to be improved with railroad facilities which would intersect the recent purchases by the Phila delphians, and give outlet to the Guif, the Atlantic, and also to the North and South. When the Everglades, which also have been purchased by the Philadelphia capitalists, were rendered valuable by draining the Okeechobee Lake, and were cultivated for sugar, corn, modations offered by the railroad improvements which would gradually be extended into all that country. This, of course, is the rosy view of a great venture which is doubtless honestly made, but which at present has not passed the stage of experiment. If the rosy view proves to be the true one, the projectors will reap a tich reward, and everyone will be glad to see the waste places of Florida settled by an insustrious and thrifty population.

JAMES A. GARFIELD.

Shot at his post! We never knew how strong
The hand that grasped the helm, till came the shock—
When the fingers tightened in Pain's helpless lock

And the good ship quivered all her begins along.
This was no deed of mutineers that throng
In clamorous revolt—no supken rock—
Madness at Death's own grandeur dared to mock
A pitiful fool has worked the State this wrong.

Not with the waves alone; with rebel's hate,
With friend's distrust, he battled. Slowly grew
Our confidence in him who steered us on.
Danger, that found him faithful, crowns him great.
The Ship of State sails n; but of her crew
Who well might take the helm, he being gone?

SILVER COINAGE PROPOSALS.

IMPORTANT STATEMENT BY MR. GLADSTONE. LONDON, June 7 .- The Paris correspondent of The Times says:

At the Monetary Conference yesterday an Italian delegate stated that findy was willing to enter into a league with the Latin Union and the United States for a limited coinage of silver for five years, on equation that Germany suspends the sales of silver for that period, substituting silver for small gold coins and small notes, and making silver an unlimited legal tender at the ratio of 15½ to 1 of gold, and on condition that England makes silver a legal tender to a higher amount, the minimum quota of the mininge of each State to be proportionate to her population, with the option of exceeding that minimum or certain conditions.

A Dutch delegate constraing the offer of England to maintain a free mintage of silver in India as an admission that even a partial bi-metalite lengue could make the price of silver steady, strongly appealed to England not to incur the responsibility of a perious failure by holding also from the league, and exhorted her to crown her advecey of free trade by perfecting the instruments of exchange. At the close of the sitting the President of the Conference suggested that the date for the final sitting be fixed.

ROME, July 7 .- The Italian newspapers publish news to the effect that the French and American delegates to the Monetary Conference are agreeing upon a formula for the adjournment of the Conference which would open the way for diplomatic negotiations and lead to the reassembling of the dele-

A STATEMENT BY MR. GLADSTONE. In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Gladstone, replying to a question by Mr. Magniae (Liberal),

said;
The Government had made no engagement, and had conferred no authority on the British delegates to the Monetary Conference to make any alterations going beyond the present law currency. The Government had been informed that an agreement was possible between the silver-using Powers, if, amongst other matters, the Bank of England would consent to hold a portion of its reserve in silver. They communicated this to the Bank of England and the latter replied that it saw no reason way such assurance should not, subject to the consent of the Treasury, be conveyed to the Monetary Conference, and that the bank would be open to purchase silver, provided the mints of other countries would return to such rules as would insure the conversion by them of gold into silver and vice versa. Mr. Fremantic, British delegate, accordingly conveyed the information to the Conference. There was no intention to alter the present currency laws, and the British delegates had no authority to make any other representation. Lord Hartington, Secretary of State for India,

said:

The only engagements the Indian delegate was authorized to make were that for some definite term of years India would undertake not to depart in any direction calculated to lewer the value of silver from the existing practice of coining silver, provided her coin be made current in other silver-using countries and in the Indian doisinlons, conditionally upon the acceptance of an agreement by the other Governments binding them to open their mints for a similar term for the coining of silver in the proportion of 15½ to 1 of gold, the obligation on India being binding only as long as these terms remain in torce.

A LIBERAL LEADER SET ASIDE.

LONDON, July 7.—Jesse Collings, of Ipswich, one of the few Liberal members of Parliament who take the extreme Irish view, has been compelled to resign the presidency of the Federation of Liberal Associations, because of dissatisfaction with his course. ELBERON, N. J., July 7.—The dispatches received by General Grant to-day regarding the condition of the President were encouraging. The General left for New-York this morning at 11 o'clock, and has not yet returned. Mrs. Grant is receiving the General's dispatches at the cottons of her sen Jesse. If the President of her sen Jesse. If the President of her sen Jesse. turned. Mrs. Grant is receiving the General's dispatches at the cottage of her son Jesse. If the President's improvement continues, a grand demonstration will be heid by the cottage owners whe, on June 25, tendered the President a reception. The fireworks and powder which were not exploded on the Fourth on ancount of the threatened caiamity, are being kept to addizent to the contemplated celebration. A rumor reached here to night that the President had had a relapse, and it caused much anxiety as to what news the next bulletin would bring. The author of the rumor cannot be traced. The New Jersey State Foachers' Association, in convention here, have telegraphed to the President their condolence and hope of his speedy recovery.

A STORY OF FOUR YEARS ACO. AN INSANE MAN WHO THEN THREATENED TO KILL PRESIDENT HAYES, AND WHO WAS LOCKED UP

FOR SIX MONTHS. WASHINGTON, July 7 .- The Critic of this city tells the following story of the inauguration of President

Just before the 4th of March, 1877, a young centleman of this city, Mr. Hagan, went to the Rev. Father Reville, the famous Deminican pulpit orator—who died from yellow fever about a year afterward, during the Memphis epidemic—and told him that he was greatly worried over a certain matter. An acquaintance of his from Illinois had arrived and informed him that he purposed to assassinate theyes. He did not know what to do or how to go about it, as the man was evidently insane and determined to carry out his project. Father Reville, who was then at St. Dominie's Claurch, immediately advised Mr. Hagan, and they went together at once to betective Medevitt on the communicated the facts of the case to Major Richards, then Chief of Police, who directed the detective hook up the man and examine into the matter. Medevitt discovered that the would-be assassin was at the imperial Hotel. On his way up the avenue to that extabilishment he met two of the Secret Service men, Anchisa and Maxwell, and suggested to them that they approach the would-be assassin. They did; and the man—he was quite a well-to-do man from Northern Illinois, Myers by name—gave—nehrs a $20 gold piece with which to purchase a pisted on his promising to aid him in his pich. McDevitt thea arrested Myers and conveyed him to Police Headquarters. He found that in his room at the hotel he was well "heled" with an arsenal of weapons. Myers did not deny his intentions, but said he had intended to shoot Hayes, then proclaim himself President, and to be sworn in amid the ringing of belis and the firing of campon.

After due consultation the police authorities, convinced of his insanity, remanded him to the lusane as vinm. He was kept there for about six months, and then sent home to his son under charge of a nurse. Just before the 4th of March, 1877, a young gentleman

SYMPATHY OF FELLOW-SOLDIERS. Bosron, July 7.-The Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic has promulgated the following:

HEADQUARTERS GRAND ARMY OF THE REPURLIC, BOSTON, Mass., July 7, 1881. HEADQUAITERS GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC,
BOSTON, Mass., July 7, 1881.

General Orders, No. 4.

Awaiting the fateful issue which hangs like a pall over the land, craisful for a glimpse of sunshine through the dark cloud, the soldiers of the Grand Army of the Republic tender their old comrade in arms, the stricker President, their sympathy and love. What lies behind the veil of the future we may not seek to know; but remembering that the same Almighty which guided us to victory is beneath our fallen contrade, let us cast out all our fears, and send to the Throne of Grace not a cry of despair, but a prayer of hope and falth in the Divine wis dom and love.

General S. Mehrill,
Commander-in-Chief.
